What's New In Your State: Going Green!

Greensboro, North Carolina, February 2009—Allosaurus Publishers has struck gold—or should we say green?—with a new book on ways to protect the environment. A reference book for every state, What's New in Your State: Going Green! highlights the ways in which both children and adults can help make our world a cleaner, healthier place to live.

Focusing on the changes in the environment, Going Green! discusses how these changes will affect the reader's daily life and future. Essays on famous environmentalists, from John James Audubon to Al Gore, illustrate the different ways individuals have contributed to the cause of environmental protection across the years. The book is perfect for the classroom as indexes, a glossary, "did-you-knows," word search puzzles and other learning tools are provided for teachers' aid.

Students and teachers alike will find What's New in Your State: Going Green! a valuable resource for everything green. To learn more about going green, visit the Allosaurus website at www.allosauruspublishers.com
